

“Can you imagine the joy we felt when we received news that we were receiving a scholarship from Family Hope Foundation to help pay for Grace’s Occupational Therapy at the Center for Childhood Development? Steven and I still get emotional talking about this today. Family Hope Foundation understands the emotional and financial strain that comes with helping a child with special needs.

The scholarship was the difference between our daughter continuing to develop her skills or experiencing setbacks during her fundamental years. Thank you for believing in Grace and making this dream a reality for so many families.”

“Thank you for investing so much of your time and energy to a special group of children, so often ignored or, worse, shunned. The world is a scary place for those with special needs like autism, but for a moment in time, you make it seem normal. You capture the heart and soul inside a body that works differently from the majority of the world. I read a quote the other day that said, ‘Autism is not a processing error; it’s a different operating system.’ Thank you, thank you, for getting that and working with it instead of against it.”

(Testimonial from one of Christine’s clients)

“Receiving the Family Hope Foundation scholarship has meant that someone else out there cares about my son and his progress. It has meant that someone else shares our dream that someday he can tell me what is wrong, what he needs and what he wants. It means that I can have a professional to work along the way instead of figuring things out alone. It means we don’t have to struggle alone.”
