GALLERY GAL

Laura Hathaway knows just about everyone in the Atlanta art scene. Opening her gallery just last April, the Chattanooga, Tenn.-born and -raised gallery owner and director of Hathaway Contemporary Gallery (hathawaygallery.com) strives to foster and expand the contemporary art collector base in the Southeast. Now residing in Buckhead, this Atlantan is doing just that by exhibiting both emerging and established artists. But she doesn't do it entirely on her own: Along with her team at the gallery, Hathaway says, "I've been in Atlanta for 20 years and wouldn't be able to do any of this without the support of my husband, Daniel, and our two boys!"—AL

LUNCH BREAK ↑ "When I walk into Bocado, they know me and start placing my order. All the hype about the burger is real!" 887 Howell Mill Road NW, 404.815.1399, bocadoatlanta.com

SHOP TALK

A LUST FOR LUXURY

It's a new day at Neiman Marcus as the beloved department store ushers in a fresh wave of designers with Luxe Lab, a debut concept open now at Lenox Square. The curated collection, which boasts apparel from 13 forward-thinking creatives like Talitha, Stouls, Magda Butrym and Francesco Scognamiglio, aims to capture a new audience of discerning shoppers for the luxury retailer. Located in the fine apparel department, the dedicated space offers a posh playground of more than 200 mix-and-match pieces, including an exclusive line of swanky jackets from Nour Hammour decked out in studs, fringe and fur ($1,760 to $4,260), bohemian-chic frocks from Brock Collection ($450 to $4,490) and flower-festooned garb from Simone Rocha ($205 to $3,690). Now, shop to it. —Allison Mitchell
